Dodging Duty

It is a shame that high-class men for office will not stand in line; though asked, again and yet again, this duty all of them decline. The offices all go to skates, to patriots who want the mon; we want good men as candidates alas, the good men will not More Elaborate Mansions for the run! We want good men with honest hearts, strong men abhorring shams and tricks, brought up in offices and marts, and not in stews of politics. And if perthem with campaign lies, and ratin self-esteem, their virtue slim; we'll prove they stole a widow's pig, and swiped a soldier's wooden limb. We'll deal in fury and in sound until, disgusted, they retire; we'll hire cheap sleuths to rake around and dig their records from the mire. We'll quickly jolt them from the groove in which they spend their quiet lives; with affidavits we will prove that every day they beat their wives. Why don't our good men save the realm, and bleed and die in proper style? The country needs them at the helm. Howes for Birds.

$10,000 FOR POTOMAC RIVER.

Gen. Kingman, Chief of Army Engineers, Allots River and Harbor Fund Included in the 170 allotments made by Gen. Kingman, chief of engineers of the army, from the appropriation of $20,000,000 made by Congress for the maintenance and preservation of existing river and harbor projects is one of $10,000 for continuing the im-provement of the Potomac river at Washington.

The largest single allotment was $3,-750,000 to the Mississippi river commission. The Delaware river, below Philadelphia, was allowed $1,000,000 for the completion of a thirty-five-foot channel. New York harbor was allotted about $1,300,000 for improvement work. The Boston harbor got $220,000.

ment work. The Boston harbor got $250,000.

Among the projects which receive part of the appropriation are: Delaware (for Wilmington harbor), $31,000; Virginia (for Rappahannock and Mattaponi rivers), $9,000, and North Carolina, $277,000. No funds were made available for the maintenance of Maryland waterways.

Some of the allotments are comparatively small, in view of the importance of the projects upon which they are to be expended. That is accounted for by the fact that the money is to be used in such cases mainly to prevent deterioration of important sections of the work rather than te continue it on a proper scale. Gen Ringman reserved $995,220 for contingencies.

A Tomato Can Home.

An ordinary tomato can with a circular piece of board fitted in one end makes an excellent house to attract bluebirds and wrens. This tomato can house should always be put in a shaded place, as the metal becomes very hot in the sun. Martins are readily attracted by houses made from gourds. A number of the gourd houses strung on a pole with a cross plece will make a very satisfactory tenement house for a colony of martins. Then there are houses made from logs and regular palaces built up like doll houses with little windows and doors, very cunning-like, so that one would swear there were staircases and fireplaces inside, and dining rooms where Mrs. Bird could feed all the children—that is, if she hadn't abandoned the house after twittering gently to Mr. Bird.

minutes later. The lesson cost Sheers a ten-dollar note, which was the fine assessed against him by Justice Anderson for contempt of court. Justice Anderson was sitting with Chief Justice Covington, and examining talesmen for the grand jury.

The excuse offered by the talesman was that he had stopped for luncheon. After Sheers had expressed his ideas about the solemnity and binding force of an oath, Justice Anderson told the juror that the court would not accept him for jury service.

When taken to the cellroom below the court, after the imposition of the fine, Sheers emphatically declared he would not pay the fine, but would hire a lawyer. Later, when Clerk McKee went below to inquire about payment, the prisoner attempted to borrow $16 from the clerk on the security of his watch. Deputy Marshal Sherwood was also appealed to for a loan on the same security, but both officials declined to accommodate Sheers. The arrival of the van to convey the prisoners to jail and the sight of a pair of handcuffs about to be attached to his wrist gave Sheers a change of heart. He "found" his bankroll and stripping off a tense to his place of business.

Considerable work for charity is exected to be done at the Handicraft chool, 1622 H street northwest, this year. A great deal of this work was done the last season, during the school's first year. Many of the stu-dents who studied bookbinding, basketry, design, weaving and metal work sold their products, turning the proceeds over to charity. Others who studied did so with the object of preparing for the work of teaching in the local missions.

Many society women have enrolled in the institution, though the school is said to be by no means a "society school." The women who attend feel that they should be fitted to useful ocpations, no matter what their sta-tion in life, it is explained.
